

Humber Historic Environment Record: Essential Information

The Humber HER data held on the Heritage Gateway should be treated as a signpost to further information; it is not the total sum of our knowledge or holdings for the reasons given below:

- We have a large number of projects that have not made their way onto the computerised record yet. By association, this means the information is not on the Heritage Gateway.
- For records already on the Gateway, more detailed information is often held in paper form at our offices. Work is constantly on-going to add all this information on the computerised database, and eventually on to the Heritage Gateway.
- Humber HER Data available on the Heritage Gateway is copyright and is not licenced for commercial re-use. If you wish to use data for commercial purposes, please submit a data request via our website. Information extracted by the user must be used for non-commercial research and personal interests only. Information in the Humber HER is protected by copyright law and must not be reproduced, copied, passed, sold published, demonstrated, lent or otherwise transferred in data or written form by a third party without prior written consent by Humber HER. For clarification on what you can do with data, please contact us archaeology@hullcc.gov.uk.
- There is no 'live' link between the Heritage Gateway and our internally held database. We update information on the Heritage Gateway every 12 months. To ensure you have the fullest and most updated records please contact the HER directly at archaeology@hullcc.gov.uk or submit a data request using the form on our webpage.
- The geographical information is in six figure grid references
- Information obtained from Heritage Gateway is intended for use for non-commercial information and certain research purposes only; the use of material on Heritage Gateway for commercial or planning purposes is not acceptable. If you are using Humber HER information for commercial or planning purposes (e.g. desk-based assessment, for a scoping document or other development-related study) you will need to consult the HER directly to obtain the fullest and most accurate information available and there will be a charge for this service
- Whilst every effort is made to provide useful information, the Humber HER cannot be held responsible for the accuracy of information held on the HER database. Users should verify the accuracy and reliability of information themselves. This can be done by consulting the original source material for a record. If you need help getting this information, please call or email us archaeology@hullcc.gov.uk
- The Humber HER strictly prohibits the information being made available and being used for purposes that cause damage, or could lead to damage to archaeological sites, historic buildings, landscapes or any aspect of the historic environment.
- The mention of any particular site or feature or building does not imply any right of public access.
- Acknowledgement should be made to the Humber HER where this information is used in any document or publication, whether printed or online. Users are asked to inform the Humber HER of any new sites that their researches may discover within Kingston upon Hull or the East Riding of Yorkshire.
